As the _____ (adjective) flowers started to bloom, and the _____ (adjective) birds started to sing, _____ (name for a rabbit) the Easter Bunny knew Easter was _____ (adverb) approaching. As much as he loved bringing joy and _____ (positive emotion) to little families on Easter morning, _____ (same rabbit name) was feeling a little bit _____ (synonym for sad) this year. He felt like something was missing in his little bunny life. So, he decided to leave Easter Island, and take a walk in the town of _____. But first, to disguise himself, he put on a/an _____ (Halloween costume) costume. This way, no one would know recognize him. As he started walking down _____, a single piece of paper floated down from the sky, landing right in front of his _____ (name of a street) feet. "_____ (adjective)!" he shouted out. When he read the paper in front of him, he couldn't believe it: It was a flyer for a talent show! The announcement read: "Calling all _____ (adjective) musicians, dancers, and artists of all kinds! Show your talents off this Saturday night!" "_____ (interjection)," he thought. Saturday night was the night before Easter, but this talent show was exactly what he needed. _____ (same rabbit name) has always had a love for music, especially Hip Hop. He thought carefully about how he would pull this off: if he could be back to Easter Island by midnight on Saturday, he would be able to gather up his magic and basket of _____ (adjective) _____ (adjective) Easter eggs and candy for all the children that Easter morning. So, it was decided. He was going to do enter the talent show!

Saturday night came and he was so nervous, it felt as though his stomach was full of _____. He was so anxious, but also _____ (synonym for happy). He was disguised again, but this time, he wore a/an _____ (insect) costume, and signed up with the name: _____ (adjective) _____ (animal). Promptly at 8:00 pm, the talent show started. He was up last, and he sat backstage watching act after act of talented other musicians and dancers. He didn't know if he could do it. Should he hop away now? But before he had time to decide, he was called to the stage. His _____ (adjective) bunny heart was beating _____ (number) beats a minute. But, as he got to the microphone, his nerves disappeared. He opened his mouth and the words just flowed out like _____ (type of liquid):

Easter only comes one day a year,
 I wrote this song about it with a pen and a/an _____ (noun that rhymes with 'year')
 I do what I love, and I love what I do,
 But when the beat starts thumpin', it's just me and a/an _____ (noun that rhymes with 'do')
 Hop, hop, hop, I said a hippety hop,
 Hop, hop, hop, you're gonna hop til' you _____ (word that rhymes with 'hop')
 I said drop that hop; hip, hippety hop,
 Hoppin' all around you with a blippity _____ (different word that rhymes with 'hop')
 I'm gonna drop this mic; this mic's gonna drop,
 Dropping like I'm hopping with a flippity _____ (different word that rhymes with 'hop')

He dropped the mic, and the crowd _____ (past tense verb) to their feet! It was undeniable! He had won! A wave of _____ (positive emotion) fell all around him. All the contestants ran to the stage as the host brought out the trophy to present to _____. But, when the host got to the center of the stage, _____ (same rabbit name) was nowhere to be found. Everyone looked around in confusion wondering where the mysterious Hip Hopper hopped off to. Little did they know, _____ (same rabbit name) was already hopping his way back to Easter Island to transform back into the iconic little rabbit we all know and love: The Easter Bunny.
